VARIOUS circumstances have of late called attention to the question how the Chinese residents in the Colony should be represented. The repeated deputations to His Excellency the Governon, may be taken as among the most prominent indications that something is required to be done in this direction; but we cannot help thinking that the plan which the Governor has adopted, of having semiofficial "confabs" with self-constituted representatives of the native community. scarcely likely to meet this want. It is at least a somewhat crude way of getting at the to a new account. wishes of any given class of the community, and there are many valid reasons against night boat between Hongkong and Canton; it it, and on his return he went straight to the tation, who waited on H.E. the Governor on cucouraging it, to the extent at all evants is hoped by a reduction in the rates of freight | cook-house to wash up the basins, and did not Thursday. sures passed, they would not be encouraged, except upon rare occasions, to bring the matfore forward in the form of representation by plan constantly adopted, the Governor would scarcely, have an hour to himself; and complaints from different sections of the Community,

What reason, then, is there that an exceptional form of procedure should be adopted with reference to the Chinese? The most obvious reason would appear to be bis son, the Baron Do Ceroal, to fill the va- "Tab, Tab," The first defendant was caught that, as the Chinese are not acquainted with the English language and with English law Mr. Weller. These two nominations will reand customs, they require special forms of quire confirmation. protection and of government. This, in point of fact, is the argument usually advanced. It has a certain appearance of plausibility, and is, perhaps, the only argument which has any appearance of force in favour of deviating so much from principles fully recognised in the present day, as to make special laws for special classes. But, in reality, almost the only argument that can be adduced for a deviation from the principle of making the administration of a given place uniform, has little or no foundation. There are a large number of the lower classes of Chinese who caunot speak English; but, on the other hand, there is a very large proportion of the community—from the coolie who speaks the lowest form of "pidgin" up to the English speaking and writing Chinaman, who uses the longest of words and writes in the most correct of styles-who speak English quite Chinaman has ten dollars to gain from a charter a vessel, or get a passage on board a steamer, he knows how to find out the proper shrewd in the way in which he does so. He must consult with the Tung Wa Hospital. or some other institution, to know what he is to do; and the Committee of that establishment must be called into requisition to represent his wants to the Government, and to point out that except though the intermediare that the judge's notes could not be suppleof a closed Chinese corporation, it will be quite impossible to govern the Chinese residents in the Colony.

If it were true that the Chinese are unable to know the laws without such assistance, it might be reasonably concluded that the description. But it is now even proposed by the natives that this should be supplemented by municipal officers, in point of fact, that the Chinese should be granted a right of representation which has been porsistently refused to the foreign portion of the community.
